Midland, Michigan

PURE RESOURCES. PURE INNOVATION

What once began as a small Indian village and developed into a community of fisherman and fur traders has today become a center for culture, large-scale industry, and technology. But that's the beauty of Midland – pure resources and pure innovation.

The area's humble beginnings as a logging and fur trading community paved the way for Midland's bright future of possibility. In 1890, Herbert Henry Dow arrived in Midland and founded the Dow Chemical Company, enabling the community to grow and establish a strong foundation in a burgeoning industry. Today, Midland is the global headquarters of two Fortune 500 companies—Dow Chemical Company and Dow Corning Corporation. It is also home to Midland Cogeneration

Venture, the largest gas-fueled steam recovery cogeneration facility in North America. With such strong roots in technology, Midland has asserted itself as a core location for developments in alternative energy and other forward-thinking industries.

Whether you're interested in Midland's innovative technologies, natural wonders, or rich culture, it's clear that there's a little piece of Midland made for everyone.

FROM HIGH-FLYING FESTIVALS TO CLASSIC CELEBRATIONS

Join us in Downtown Midland, where our unique festivals and events will have you soaring to new heights and rollin' on the river!

Midland's annual Balloon Fest, hosted by RE/MAX of Midland, launches each September, bringing excitement to a whole new altitude. Lifting off from the Midland County Fairgrounds, the Midland Balloon Fest begins its first day of activities when approximately 50 balloons take to the skies. The annual Balloon Fest event is free to the public, and includes live evening entertainment.

From up in the sky to down on the river, the festivities in Midland never cease to amaze! One of the highlights of a Midland summer is the annual RIVERDAYS Festival, always held the third weekend in July. Sponsored by the Midland Foundation, the festival celebrates the community's history and the importance of the Tittabawassee and Chippewa Rivers in developing these roots. During RIVERDAYS, you can enjoy reenacted battles, concerts, fireworks displays, and even a petting zoo!

Join us the first weekend in June on the beautiful grounds of Midland Center for the Arts for the Summer Art Fair, held outdoors rain or shine. Featuring the impressive works of over 120 juried artists along with food vendors, street musicians, artists' demonstrations, and a children's activity corner, this free event paints a whole new picture of fun.

Dow Gardens is your gateway to experiencing all of nature's best-kept secrets and hidden treasures.

This 110-acre expanse of stunning garden landscape brings to life the beauty of each season, showcasing the region's most spectacular display of trees, flowers, and other natural wonders.

Over the past century, The Dow Gardens have expanded from an original 8-acre plot developed by Herbert H. Dow in 1899 to a 110-acre spread of astounding natural beauty. However, one thing has remained the same—Herbert Dow's original philosophy to "never reveal the gardens' whole beauty at first glance."

Discover for yourself The Dow Gardens' seasonal splendor, from the freshest spring bulbs to the most brilliant fall colors. Summer brings over 20,000 vibrant tulips into bloom, while winter transforms the gardens into a sparkling white wonderland with a lush display of plants and poinsettias in the conservatory.

With an interactive Children's Garden for blossoming nature lovers and unique new events like the Festival of the Senses beer & wine tasting in the gardens, there is truly something for all ages to admire within the intricate Dow Gardens.
